Community project creates gardens from unused lands

by Mike Pee

Are you doing anything special this Fall Quarter? How would you like to do something nice for yourself and someone else during your spare time?

The Community Gardens Project is a new idea spreading around the country and you can be a vital part of it. Community Gardens is a recently developed student volunteer organization in the Student Community Services.

Our purpose is to turn idle land in the community into productive vegetable gardens.

Idle land is plentiful throughout our community. These are empty lots that grow healthy weeds, but nothing else. Through our gardens, we hope to stimulate individual concern and appreciation for our immediate environment.

There are many people in the San Luis Obispo area who are in need of the basics of life, but lack the knowledge to improve their situation. That's where the concerned Cal Poly student fits in. The Cal Poly community has a wealth of knowledge, experience, and energy which could be put to productive use through the Community Gardens Project. If you are a student in one of the agricultural sciences, this project offers a great opportunity for you to make productive use of what you've learned in the classroom. Those students unfamiliar with the many aspects of gardening will have the opportunity to learn the correct way of maintaining a garden.

We hope to initiate Community Gardens with a donated section of land and a small group of interested students. Later we anticipate having numerous gardens throughout San Luis Obispo operating with the aid of both students and non-student members of our community.

Fifty percent of the produce grown in the community gardens will be divided among those students working in the gardens. The other 50 percent of the produce goes either to a certain non-profit community agency or to a family facing an emergency situation, e.g., a family who recently was burned out of its home and is now without food or shelter.

If you can donate idle land, or know someone who can provide tools, fencing, seeds, suggestions or some spare time, then Community Gardens needs you. For further information, please contact:

improvements on this campus.

Construction of the new facility will eliminate the cramped quarters shared by the biology, chemistry and physics departments by relocating all biological science programs in the Science North Bldg. and the new structure.

According to Gerard, "We're horribly over utilizing our existing labs in order to provide the educational experience students desire." Instead of the normal 25 hour-per-week work load, labs are being utilized as much as 40 hours per week.

However, he said, completion of the building will not affect enrollment of biological science majors beyond the 75 person increase already projected for 1980. "We will still need to accommodate other students outside the major who will be enrolled in biological science courses," Gerard added.

The existing Science Bldg. will be remodeled to convert present facilities for use by the physical science and chemistry programs. Eventually, the veterinary and soil science programs will be moved to an intended agriculture building, leaving physics and chemistry the sole occupants of the Science Bldg.

Construction of the new facility is not scheduled to begin until early 1978. Once completed, the building will house three classrooms, 18 laboratories, and a total of 41 faculty office spaces.

Services held today for David Sexton

David Arthur Sexton, a Cal Poly student, was killed Thursday, when he lost control of his motorcycle in the 700 block of Grand Avenue.

Sexton, 24, was exceeding the speed limit when his bike hit the curb, according to the city police department. He was taken to French Hospital, where he died a short time later.

A Long Beach resident, Sexton was a third-year Poly student in Electronic Engineering.

Sexton is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sexton of Long Beach.

Services are scheduled to be held today in Long Beach.

Candidate tells reform plan

Democratic congressional candidate Julian Camacho released his seven point plan for campaign and congressional reform in noontime remarks to the Lions Club Thursday, saying "the government has lost contact with the needs of the people."

Camacho's seven point platform includes:

—Public campaign financing for all federal offices in order to make public officials more responsive to the people.

—Major overhaul of the seniority system in Congress.

—Live television coverage of congressional committee hearings and floor activities on a regular basis.

—A direct national presidential primary.

—Ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment by the states, so women can have equal access to political and economic institutions.

—Federal voter registration, similar to the Canadian system, eliminating partisan excesses and making it easier for citizens to register.

—A permanent office of the Special Prosecutor to bring swift action against government corruption and campaign violations.

Camacho said:

"The political system as we see it today would revolt Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, or John Adams. It's time. We need a change to restore trust in the government."

When asked why students should vote for him Camacho said:

"We have a situation today where inflation is wreaking havoc with the economy. The incumbent, Burt Talcott, supports the military-industrial complex, the most inflationary factor in the economy today."

"Burt Talcott was named a member of the 'Dirty Dozen' and has done nothing for the environment or the economy," Camacho added.

In his second bid for the 16th district congressional seat, Camacho says his campaign is based on three issues; the economy, the environment, and campaign and congressional reform.

On the economy, Camacho says federal spending should be cut by ending all foreign aid to military dictators. He proposes bringing troops home from Korea, Japan, and other foreign countries.

Camacho endorses "vigorous anti-trust laws to monitor corporations and see that profits are warranted." He advocates a tax cut for lower and middle income Americans, as well as plugging loopholes in corporate tax laws so they "pay their fair share."

Concerning the environment Camacho said:

"I have a long record of opposition to the destruction of our fragile coastline. I am strongly opposed to the supertanker-superport in Estero Bay. I am against the burning of coal, and don't see the need for a proliferation of nuclear power plants along the coastline."

Camacho says more money should be put into research and development for other fuel resources, such as geothermal and solar energy.

Eagles, Young rock concert on... maybe

Rock is coming to Cal Poly...maybe.

That on again, off again rock concert featuring the Eagles, Neil Young and Joni Mitchell may be on again.

Arturo Aleman, chairman of the Ethnic Programming Board, announced the possibility at the board's meeting Thursday night. Aleman said the Native American Students Organization, which would sponsor the event, was trying to arrange the concert for Nov. 16 in the Men's Gym.

The concert, which would benefit the Red Wind Foundation, had been originally scheduled for Oct. 19 in Mustang Stadium. The Facilities Use Committee denied the request to use the stadium, saying it would conflict with the ASI sponsored Arlo concert scheduled for Oct. 20.

A student member of that committee told Mustang Daily she had voted against the proposal because the ASI would lose money in providing security and other arrangements for the concert.

At the time the request was denied by the committee it was rumored the concert would be held in Santa Barbara, sometime in November. However, Aleman's announcement would seem to rule this out for the time being.

Aleman said he made the announcement so programming board members would be aware of the plans and would not schedule some other activity for that date.

Aleman told the board, although the concert would not cost it anything, the members should be prepared to help with the arrangements if the plan was approved.

Foundation audit ready

A copy of the California Polytechnic State University Foundation's audited fiscal statement is available for inspection. The statement for the 1974-75 Fiscal Year is available at the office of the Foundation Executive Director in Rm. 313 in the University Union.

Vet work-study still available

Vacancies are still available in the Veterans Work-Study Program, where a vet can receive $250 in return for 100 hours of work completed by the end of Spring Quarter.

To qualify a vet must presently be a full-time student and receiving VA Educational Benefits. Clerical work will be required in the Veteran Affairs Office, and hours will be arranged at the student's convenience. Students will be chosen on the basis of financial need by the VA Office in Los Angeles.

Interested students should contact Dennis Holmes in the Veteran Affairs Office in Rm. 103, U.U. or call 841-1181.

Wounded Knee benefit Sunday

The Wounded Knee Legal Defense Fund will be supplemented by a benefit rock concert at the Marsh Street Annex Sunday.

The concert will feature Otter Cove, Mississippi Firemouth and Minky Felix. The activities will last from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Admission is $1.50.

Ford has a better (?) idea with WIN button

Dear President Ford:
I was glad to hear your speech on inflation last week. I was particularly pleased to know you've decided to make the Whip Inflation Now (WIN) button the sounding board for your out-moded and corporation-biased policies.

I'm glad a man of your intelligence has decided buttons are going to be one of the most effective ways of fighting inflation. The housewife, the underpaid teacher and the unemployed factory worker all appreciate the effort that was put into your economic summit. Words cannot express how happy these people (the ones hit hardest by inflation) were, when they found out buttons would be the solution to all of our economic problems.

The WIN buttons will be very popular at unemployment offices throughout the nation. Labor unions will be especially glad to know the buttons will be there to turn to when some of their members start getting laid-off. You can expect a phone call from George Meany any day now congratulating you on this fine example of a Madison Ave. snow-job.

Mr. President, you really hit upon a novel idea with these WIN buttons. We are going to whip inflation in no time. My only regret is other Presidents should have used this tactic in the past. Consider Mr. Johnson and the Vietnam war—what a difference buttons would've made there.

Just think what a WAN (Weismoreland And Napalm) button could've done for his foreign policy. I think that kind of button could've had great potential on our college campuses.

It's also a pity you didn't think of the buttons when the news came out about the $8 million that was spent to help overthrow the Allende government in Chile. Those buttons could have been called CIA (Covert Infiltration of Allende).

But we can't cry over past events so I guess I'll have to be happy with your buttons on inflation.

Before you came out with these buttons, a lot of people were worried you wouldn't do anything serious about inflation. Mr. President, you sure showed them who plays football without a helmet! I'm overjoyed you didn't mention one way to help the fight against inflation would be to stop all financial support of all the military dictatorships that are our friends. The control of millions of peasant lives is more important than just a few million dollars of our tax money.

Another part of your speech that was great was the one place where you talked about coal burning instead of oil burning for power plants. Some advice Mr. President: don't let people give you the old line that coal burning causes air pollution. There's little evidence to back up the accusation.

Americans must choose between clean air (and a bad economy) or a healthy money picture with plenty of power to run automatic dishwashers, television sets and lights necessary for night football games.

But it's the buttons that has me really enthused. Before you, other Presidents would try to stir the country with great words like "The only thing to fear..." and "What I can do for my country."

But not you, Mr. President. Who needs idle rhetoric when we can have shiny buttons that have "Win" painted on them?

Well, Mr. President, I think I've said enough. I just wanted you to know that I'm supporting your WIN buttons. I really think the economy will get better if everyone wears them.

The rate of inflation got worse and worse with the guy who was President a few months ago. He didn't have any buttons. In fact, the only thing he wore on his lapel was a cheap piece of red, white and blue plastic.

Sincerely yours,
Fred Vulin

Holley's death: did he leave us with honor?

Editors:

Like most Cal Poly students, I was surprised to read about the death of John Holley in the Mustang Daily, and I am sure that our sympathies are with his family at this time.

It is also honorable that the ASI should take some step in respect to our former ASI president. However, the steps that have been taken seem to be taken out of an overwhelming sense of sentiment and not reason.

When one lowers the flag at half-mast and steps are taken in preparation for a memorial fund, it implies that the person so honored is one who has served, in this case Cal Poly, with dignity and respect to his fellow students. This I can not quibble with in John Holley's case, but did he leave us with honor?

Can and should Cal Poly students condone his action of suicide as an acceptable way of avoiding problems, so far as to see the flag lowered in honor of a man who seemingly did not have the courage to help himself out of his problems or to seek outside help?

It seems that this is the crucial question nagging at the heels of the steps taken by the ASI. I will be as bold to suggest that there

Foreign study applications now available

The Scandinavian Seminar is currently accepting applications for the 1975-76 academic year. Individuals that qualify will have an opportunity to live in Denmark, Finland, Norway or Sweden.

The program is open to college students, graduates and adults interested in living and studying in a foreign country while learning the language.

Those who qualify will attend a three week language course before staying with a family in one of the countries.

Participants in the program will then live and study with Scandinavians at either residential schools for continuing adult education or some other type of specialized learning institution.

The student's studies, experiences and progress will be reviewed and discussed during mandatory introductory, midyear and final sessions.

The primary objective of the overseas program is to enable participants to work on independent study projects in their specialized field of interest. Full or partial credit is given by many colleges and universities for the work-study program.

The cost for tuition, room, board, one-way group transportation from New York and all course connected travels in Scandinavia is $3,200. Some scholarship loans are available.

With honor...

are people around, maybe at Cal Poly, whose personal situation is much worse than that of John Holley's at the time of his death. It would be a time-consuming effort in trivial historical knowledge in pointing out examples of past figures who overcame personal obstacles and achieved greatness. I will go so far as to say this is (or should be) one of the reasons that we are here at Cal Poly: to gain access to knowledge, plus the socialization process that automatically occurs to solve not only our problems, but those of others.

Certainly, there must be some other way of showing our respect to John Holley, a way that not only shows respect to him and his family at his death, but a way that shows respect to the person(s) who have the courage to face their problems head-on.

Should Nixon testify at Watergate trial?

Dale Duke, Industrial Arts, Junior:

No. It would be bad for the American image. We proved we could get Nixon out of office. We should leave it at that.

Kevin Loughran, History, Senior:

If he got the chance to testify, he would never make it to the witness stand. Before he got there he would create a diversion that he was dying. He shows he lacks in confidence.

Jean Hiel, Biological Science, Junior:

Yes. There's been too much doubt about where he stands. It should be cleared up about what went on. All those reports from his doctors sound like excuses.

David Ladesma, Architecture, Junior:

Yes. It seems like he really screwed up. He was the leader of the country and he should set an example for the rest of the people. He seems like a very dishonest man.

Russ Sharer, Industrial Engineering, Junior:

I'd say yes. He's a citizen like anyone else. He has the obligation to testify since he was served with a subpoena. He should not be treated differently.

Harriers top Sac'to State in league run

The Mustang cross-country team responded to the challenge brought to them by the Sacramento State Hornets Saturday, deciding the visitors 22-21 (low score wins).

In cross-country, of a seven-man team, only the first five runners count in the scoring with the remaining two acting as displacers.

With four runners in, the Mustangs (1st, 2nd, 8th, and 9th places) held a tight 17-19 point edge on the Hornets (3rd, 4th, 5th, and 7th places.) The Mustangs then proceeded to take the "sting" out of the Hornets by reeling off seven straight finishers before their opponents could bring in their badly need 8th and final man.

Leading the Mustangs was freshman Jim Schankel, of Lompoc, who cruised the 6-mile course in a record time of 30 min. 42 sec.

In second position was sophomore Jim Warrick, also of Lompoc, with a time of 31 min. 6 sec. Third man for the Mustangs was Gordon Rado, who placed 6th in the overall competition, and ran a time of 32 min. 10 sec.

Fourth man for the Mustangs was Bob Lyons who was a surprise to the Mustangs as well as the Hornets. Asst. coach Ed Cadena said, "the surprise was that Lyons wasn't a member of the starting team and had been of the 'B' team for the past couple of weeks." Lyons ran a lifetime best of 32 min. 29 sec.

Fifth for the Mustangs was Dave Stock, who ran 9th overall, with a lifetime best of 32 min. 39 sec.

Schankel has ran a sub-30-minute 6-mile this summer. With such a time Cadena says that "Schankel would be a premier cross-country runner in any university."

Chess league to begin play

Under the leadership of Cal Poly math instructor George M. Lewis, the newly founded Central Coast Chess League (CCCL) will begin its initial season Oct. 14.

Lewis got the idea of forming the league during a summer tournament at the California Men's Colony. He thought the tournament there was so good, he decided to form a league of his own.

There are six teams in the CCCL. Cal Poly has two representatives: Cal Poly, and ELO.

Cal Poly consists of students, ELO has faculty members and non-students.

Poly kickers top Northrop

Cal Poly used its head and lungs to win a game that is played with feet last Saturday when the Mustang soccer team came from behind to beat Northrop Institute 4-3.

Down 3-1 at the half, Coach Carmen Sacco put his gray matter to work by devising a new alignment which concentrated more on defense. It paid off as Northrop could get off only five second half shots compared to its 16 in the first period.

Meanwhile, the Mustangs superior conditioning began to show in the latter stages of the contest. The Mustangs literally ran Northrop into the ground. Sacco said he emphasized conditioning all week after the Mustangs appeared out of shape in their loss to Long Beach last week.

Sacco said he was pleased with the Mustangs showing in the second half, but upset with their disorganized performance in the first half.

Bert Shear scored twice for Cal Poly while Mike Prier and Maurice Duenas each added a goal.

Mustangs tie Broncos

Cal Poly kissed its sister last Saturday night.

To the disappointment of everyone, sister schools Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo and Cal Poly, Pomona battled to a 14-14 tie before a packed house at Pomona's Kellogg field.

It was an even game. As even as you'd expect when Cal Poly plays...well...Cal Poly.

The Mustangs scored once in the first quarter and once in the third, while the Broncos made three touchdowns in the second and third periods.

In the last period, the Mustangs twice had opportunity knocking at their door but both times they scored it off with a penalty.

A five-yard penalty took away a fourth and short situation for the Mustangs midway through the quarter and forced kicker John Loane to try a 43-yard field goal. He missed. It was one of five long tries that Loane missed in the game.

But with 1:34 left in the game the Mustangs made the biggest boo-boo. Rich Robbins of Cal Poly carried down to the Pomona 11 for a first down and what looked to be an almost a sure score. But a clipping penalty took the ball from a first and 10 on the 11 to a fourth and, oh, so many on the 22. Loane missed on a 45-yard attempt that followed.

Both teams surprisingly stuck to running the ball through the entire game. Surprisingly, because Pomona, with one of the nation's top yardage getters in quarterback Jim Zorn, was expected to fill the Southern California sky with a steady barrage of plegkin.

Zorn however hit only seven of 16 pass attempts as the Mustangs defense registered its best performance of the year.

Zorn kept getting his 'Cal Polys' mixed up as three times in the first half he was intercepted. Chris Faller's first quarter interception set up the first Cal Poly first quarter touchdown of the season.

Faller returned the Zorn mistake to the Pomona 20. From there, quarterback Cliff Johnson, who saw spot duty for the first time since he was hurt in the Boise game, took the Mustangs in.

The short drive was punctuated by a 10-yard touchdown apart by running back Bob Trudeau.

Pomona drew next blood in the second quarter when Zorn rumbled in from nine yards out on a keeper. Both Zorn and Cal Poly quarterback Robbins covered a lot of ground on quarterback runs throughout the game. Passing was definitely not in vogue.

The final Mustang touchdown came on a Rocky Chapman run. The 'Rock' zipped around the left end for 14 yards and the score.

A 27-yard run by Gary Davis and a 23-yard roll-out by Robbins gobbled up most of the yardage on the 80-yard drive. It was the best piece of action by the Mustang offense this year.

Zorn scored again on a quarterback keeper in the third quarter to end the scoring for the night.
